It has been built from all sources, and is a compilation of all the useful symptoms recorded in the fundamental works of our Materia Medica, as well as from the notes of our ablest practitioners. Many unverified symptoms have been omitted, but only when there was a decided doubt about their consistency. And on the other hand clinical matters have been given a place when it was observed to be consistent with the nature of the remedy. The plan of the Repertory is uniform throughout, and it is one which admits of the indefinite expansion of each division, so that remedies can be added from time to time as they come into use or have been confirmed and verified. It has been attempted to proceed in every case from generals to particulars, and in carrying this out the aim has been to give first of all a general rubric containing all the remedies which have produced the symptoms, By the particularities, viz. The time of occurrence, the circumstances, and by the last extensions. Here it can be noted, as far as extensions are concerned, that the point from which a particular symptom extends is that under which this symptom will be found, never under the point to which it extends. As it is well known to older practitioners, the whole of working out a case of generals for individuals is the most satisfactory. If a case is worked only from particularities is more than probable that the remaining will not be seen, and frequent failure will be the result. This is due to the fact that the particular directions in which the remains in the general rubled are still not observed, and thus depending on a small group of remaining related to some particular symptoms is turning off others Remains that may have this symptom, although not yet observed. When working in the other direction, however, this is generally the general Rubric will include all the remains that are related to symptoms, and if, after having done it, the Particularities are gone to and the remaining that runs through general rubrics is found to have particular symptoms, this will help you choose as to be prescribed. An object, so, of this repertoire has been to help in the obtaining of good general remaining groups, and by general groups and rubals should not be understood as the general of the remaining. When the pathological names are used, only the main remains under the condition referred to being found in the heading. For those who used Båusen's "Therapeutic Pocket Book" "NNINGHAUSEN, work outside the cases of generals is a family -friendly man. But for the benefit of younger men the following suggestions are offered that may be: after taking the case according to the lines established in the "Organon" (§ 83-140), write all mental symptoms and all the symptoms and conditions of the patient himself and search the Repertory for symptoms that correspond to these. Then search for such physical symptoms as are predicated of the blood, colour of discharge, and bodily aggravation and amelioration that include the whole being, as well as desire for open air, desire for heat, cold air, for rest, for motion which may be only a desire or may bring a general feeling of amelioration. It should be understood that a circumstance that makes the whole being feel better or worse is of much greater importance than when the same circumstance only affects the painful part, and these are often quite opposite. Then individualize still further, using the symptoms predicated of the organs, functions and sensations, always giving an important place to the time of occurrence of every symptom until every detail has been examined. Then examine the symptom picture collectively and individually, and lastly study the Materia Medica of such remedy or remedies as run through the symptoms of the case until there is no doubt about wh The requested URL was not found on this server.
